

Re. Contingency Remote Learning Planning for Long Crendon School Summer/Autumn 2021

Continuation of learning is essential whilst children find themselves at home self-isolating. Our pupils will be provided with high quality online resources and activities by their teachers. We are going to make every effort to provide an interesting programme of home learning which includes the breadth of the curriculum and supports pupils' continued progress.

We ask that parents support their children in ensuring that they log-on and are punctual to their lessons and fully participate. Children are expected to hand in one piece of work a day by 3pm for their teachers to mark and return the following day.

We would suggest that tasks are best carried out in the morning when the children are fresh and better able to focus. Learning tasks are provided in this email (below) for the first day of isolation. From the second day, teachers will post assignments on Google Classroom and online live teaching will commence.

→ Day 2 of self-isolation tasks will be posted on Google Classroom (live remote lessons begin)

It is essential that parents check their child's Google Classroom account to locate these tasks.

Teachers will be monitoring children's progress and working with parents at home in three ways:

1. Parent and class teacher engagement - regular communications through email and phone
2. Submitting homework assignments on to Google Classroom
3. Monitored attendance of daily live lessons on Google Meet

Google Meet live lessons:

Year groups	30 minute daily morning lesson on Google Meet(Maths/English) Compulsory attendance (Teacher & Teaching Assistant)	30 minute additional support for focus children (this is determined by staff as a result of the teacher's assessment) (Teaching assistant)	Mon-Thurs afternoons 30 minute afternoon pupil drop-in session for all children who want some academic or pastoral support Optional attendance (Teacher)	Friday afternoon 30 min Wellbeing session/PSHE. Attendance strongly recommended for all children (Teacher)

Mental Health and wellbeing during the home-school day:

We understand that remote-learning can be challenging for both children and parents, and we recommend that mornings are spent carrying out school work whilst the children are fresh, and the afternoons are better suited to doing more practical activities, playing outside, playing with siblings and helping with chores.

Family relationships can often come under strain with home learning, and whilst we are all keen for our children to progress, if the family needs a break and the children need an afternoon in the garden, then the needs of the family's well being comes first.

We have our school counsellor Mrs Fleming who can offer support and advice on the phone, please email her your contact details and she will get in touch with you: bfleming@longcrendon.bucks.sch.uk

Children are encouraged to speak to their teachers if they have a pastoral problem during the timetabled support sessions.

Equipment:

Children will need the usual stationary such as pencils and colouring. Should you need reading books or an exercise book or stationary because you don't have some at home, please telephone/email the school and request what you need and we can then arrange for you to pick it up.

When children are self-isolating and working from home, teachers are mindful that some homes won't have printers and efforts will be made to set work which doesn't need printing.

We expect children to maintain presentation standards, neat handwriting and underlining with a ruler.

If you need to borrow a computer to enable your child to access remote learning, please email office@longcrendon.bucks.sch.uk and we will arrange to have a PC dropped off to you.

Expectations of Online use, behaviour and safeguarding:

Please see the Pupils Use Agreement. This applies to all children and households of Long Crendon School. Whilst we do not ask your child/children to formally sign this agreement, we would ask that you let us know if they or you cannot comply with it where appropriate.

Communications:

If you need support or advice, please call the school where Mrs Quinton/Mrs Leith will be at school manning the phone from 8am-6pm Mon-Friday unless the building is closed in which case please email.

Teachers will be at home teaching, planning and marking work and can be contacted if necessary by email during weekdays 8.30-3.30pm. Emails pertaining to that day's tasks will be answered as best as possible on the day. Non-urgent emails may take up to three days, because the teacher's focus will be on the teaching, marking and planning for the whole class.

There will be the inevitable technical glitches and frustrations as children and families get used to remote learning again. If you need a helping hand, please call the school.

With best wishes,

Polly Quinton
